

A Seminar on Inequality, Inclusion and High-Quality Healthcare for all with Professor David R. Williams

Florence & Laura Norman Professor of Public Health Chair, Department of Social & Behavioral Sciences, Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health, Professor of African and African American Studies and of Sociology, Harvard University

Thursday 28 November 2019

De Vere Holborn Bars

138-142 Holborn, London EC1N 2SW

2pm - 4pm

The Workforce Race Equality Standard (WRES) team is pleased to invite you to a seminar on inequality, inclusion and high-quality healthcare for all to be delivered by the fantastic Dr David Williams from Harvard University. David is an international renowned speaker on these important topics and delivers inspirational talks that people never forget.

This is an opportunity to learn about the impact race has on health and what can be done to help improve it. The seminar will also help support national and regional teams to design and develop effective interventions to help improve race equality for communities, patients and staff across our NHS.

The national WRES strategy is built on the evidence base which Dr Williams has spent 25 years of his life formulating. We are absolutely delighted that he is returning to the UK to lead this session for colleagues in the People Directorate.

If you are able to attend (and we highly recommend you do) please contact: Vinitta.lakha@nhs.net to reserve a place.

Refreshments will be available on the day.
